NEWS AND EVENTS

Events - We are pleased to be able to confirm that online booking is now open for the Simon Barrows webinar on 5 June (see details below) and also for the next face to face event, 17 June, at BCS Southampton Street, London, on "Everything you ever wanted to know about Open Data, but were afraid to ask" – click here to BOOK

So just how well is Data Governance being implemented by leading banks? How much Data Governance activity is being driven by "carrot" (i.e. business benefits) rather than "stick" (i.e. regulation)? How successful are Chief Data Officers in practice? Is Data Governance being effectively embedded in the fabric of business change processes? What tools are being employed to improve Data Quality? These and other questions were the subject of a survey on Data Governance in Banking carried out by specialist consultancy Glue Reply in conjunction with DAMA UK. Banking organisations across Retail, Commercial and Investment Banking were polled through a combination of 1-1 interviews and an online questionnaire. We spoke with a variety of people across both business and technology domains, including Data Governance and Quality Managers and also a number of Data and Enterprise Architects. The results paint an interesting picture of Data Governance journeys at various stages...

Simon Barrows is Head of Financial Services at Glue Reply, the UK's largest specialist consultancy focusing on architecture, data and integration. Simon is accountable for strategy, business performance and assignment delivery for Glue Reply's Financial Services business, serving major international banks and insurance companies as well as specialist service providers. Prior to joining Glue Reply, Simon was at Lloyds Banking Group for five years where he was CTO for the UK Consumer Banking business
